Gina A. Johnson, JD, Named Director of Human Resources and Corporate Compliance for Goodwill, Serving the People of Southern Los Angeles County

Long Beach, CA — May 16, 2014 — Goodwill, Serving the People of Southern Los Angeles County (SOLAC), has announced the new hire of Gina A. Johnson as its Director of Human Resources and Corporate Compliance. In her new role, Johnson will oversee all aspects of the organization's human resources division.

Johnson will direct employee relations for Goodwill SOLAC, as she will manage recruitment and selection, reporting systems, classification, salary administration and the benefits program. She will prepare wage measurement documentation as well as produce the human resources manual, employee handbook and trainee handbook. She also will work to ensure that the organization's human resources policies comply with the intent, practices and requirements of state and federal regulations, national Goodwill standards, and criteria required by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

Johnson comes to Goodwill with 20 years of corporate management, education, sales management and marketing experience in the government, academic and nonprofit arenas. She has many years of executive management experience, including in the areas of: human resources operations; program planning and development; organizational growth; recruitment and staffing initiatives; budget administration; multi-level training programs; grievance and claims management; benefits administration; and policy development and interpretation.

Before joining Goodwill, Johnson served as the Campus Director and Academic Dean at Wyo Tech/Everest College, where she led staff in the alignment of core values and leadership principles. Her duties also included providing day-to-day management staffing, training development and performance reviews of campus management staff.

Johnson holds a Juris Doctor degree from Western State University, College of Law. She has conducted public and private seminars and conferences for the corporate sector, universities and colleges, and legal organizations and associations.
